

Elevating your writing, Pt 2

Read the text and answer the questions.

Note: the sample text contains grammatical errors to maintain the authenticity of a candidate's writing.

Hindus does not eat cow meat because they think cows are holy. So although McDonald's is known for its hamburgers, which contains cow meat, its branches in India focuses on selling chicken and fish products, from chicken nuggets to filet-o-fish burgers, instead of making Hindus into eat cow meat. McDonald's does not dictate to abroad cultures on what they should and should not eat and will indeed change their branches' own strategies to accommodate. Thus, McDonald's was able to expand across the globe, when many other burger chains have failed and exited Hong Kong.

1. The current topic sentence does not summarise the paragraph's main idea effectively. Find another sentence in the paragraph that is a more effective topic sentence.

2. What evidence did the writer give to support his/her main point?

3. What sentence does the writer use to conclude her point of view?

4. What score would you give the text? Why?

5. Reorganise the points in the text and rewrite these ideas to elevate the paragraph to a Level 5 piece. Correct the grammatical errors and replace vocabulary with improper usage where necessary.
